This is the story of Kit, a young raccoon born just last spring. Along with his sisters, Jess and Tara, he learns the basic rules of survival from his mother. She teaches them to be discreet whenever they must change dens in the middle of the night. The three siblings learn how to fish for clams and trout in the river. They are also taught how to find edible berries. They must fatten up before the snow comes. It will soon cover their food reserve.

Kit likes to play in garbage cans, like most raccoons. His sisters are also quite adventurous. Before long, they learn about the dangers around them. Kit and his sisters go through life-changing adventures. Eventually, Kit's mother will have to kick him out of the den. But why?
